

ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT THANKS COMMUNITY

When the Frontier Community College athletic department was unfortunately struck with an outbreak of COVID-19, the campus was in awe of the outpouring of community support from the Fairfield Ministerial Alliance and countless other organizations and individuals who banded together to provide meals and food items for those in isolation. This kind gesture touched the hearts of our teams, who decided to repay the community by doing acts of community service, once cleared from isolation by the Wayne County Health Department. They helped with local food give-aways and with setting up for Fairfield's annual "Paint Out." Finally, once all athletes had been cleared, the teams came together to do a pork burger give-away, to give back to the community that had given them so much.

TITLE III TEAM CONCLUDES BUSY GRANT YEAR

The Title III team at FCC is gearing up for their second grant year after having a very busy final month of their first grant year, which concluded on September 30th. The faculty recording studio was completed and is now outfitted with all of the modern technology required for the development of high quality online/hybrid content. Aided by the new technology the Student Orientation video was piloted in August and still remains available on Canvas for students who have not yet completed the program. Finally, to round out this year's progress, the Medical Laboratory Technician program has received its Higher Learning Commission approval, and is excited to report that it has 8 students currently enrolled.

Even with this hard work so recently behind them, the Title III team is gearing up for their second grant year which includes Mason Hall Science Lab renovations, converting CNA and Phlebotomy courses to hybrid delivery, and piloting a new Financial Literacy Course for students. The internal monitoring team has also welcomed two new student additions: Kyle Borah and Hannah Vandergraph.
