EDITOR'S NOTE

As the vibrant hues of summer foliage blossom across our campus, we reflect on a successful graduation and embrace the exciting activity of our summer students. This period offers an excellent opportunity for students to accelerate their academic progress, delve into new subjects, or balance their studies with other commitments.

We're particularly excited about the upcoming grand opening of our new athletic facility, a significant enhancement for our students and community. In addition, our commitment to campus beautification continues, including planned upgrades to the Brubeck Arts Center with the invaluable assistance of our College Foundation.

WVC COLLEGIATE FARM BUREAU HOSTS CLINIC

The Wabash Valley College Collegiate Farm Bureau Chapter recently hosted a successful youth livestock showmanship clinic for 4-H members from surrounding counties on May 31st. The event provided young participants with valuable knowledge and hands-on experience to enhance their showmanship skills for upcoming county fairs. 🍁

SUMMER CAMPING AT WVC

Summer is a season of exploration and growth—and Wabash Valley College is proud to offer a wide range of youth summer camps that spark curiosity, build skills, and create lasting memories. From athletics to the arts, there's something for every child to enjoy.

WVC's summer lineup includes both athletic and non-athletic camps, giving kids the chance to stay active or dive into creative pursuits. One especially unique offering is Origami I, where students can discover the magic of paper folding. In this hands-on camp, kids will learn to create a variety of origami animals while developing focus, patience, and problem-solving skills.

In addition to Origami, WVC is also hosting:

- Theatre Camp – While registration for this camp is now closed, the excitement continues! The community is invited to enjoy the final performance as Wabash Valley College and The Wabash Valley Arts Council present the Missoula Children's Theatre production of Hansel and Gretel.
- Music Camp – Hosted by the Wabash Valley Arts Council, this camp offers young musicians a chance to grow their talents and perform with peers in a supportive, creative environment.

WVC is part of the Illinois Eastern Community Colleges (IECC) system, which offers a wide variety of summer camps across its campuses. 🔥

INTRODUCING CHAD KILLINGER, WBB HEAD COACH

Wabash Valley College has announced Chad Killinger as the new head coach for women's basketball.

Killinger brings 28 years of coaching experience, with much of that time at the junior college level. He has been part of numerous collegiate victories throughout his career.

His most recent coaching role was as head women's basketball coach at Indiana State University. Killinger has also held positions at Nicholls State University, East Carolina University, and Marshall University. At the junior college level, he previously led programs at Moberly Area Community College and Lincoln Trail College.

While at Moberly Area, Killinger's teams consistently performed well in their region and helped many student-athletes advance to four-year universities. In 2017-2018, he earned multiple accolades, including National Coach of the Year, after guiding the Lady Greyhounds to an outstanding season, finishing high in national rankings and making an appearance at the NJCAA National Tournament.

During his time at Lincoln Trail, the program saw significant success, including its first appearance in the NJCAA National Tournament and multiple appearances in national rankings. No stranger to WVC, Killinger's daughter, soccer player Josiah, just graduated in May. Welcome to Wabash Valley College!
