Regalia

Academic regalia is a tradition dating from the Middle Ages when long robes and hoods were everyday attire designed to protect against the cold and drafts of medieval university halls and influenced by the religious attire of monks. It remains the daily costume at some British universities. The many variations in academic dress are not incidental but rich in meaning. Each outfit represents the degree the wearer holds, and the institution awarded it.

The bachelor's gown has long, pointed sleeves. The master's gown has long closed sleeves with a square end and slits at the labor. The doctoral gown has round open sleeves with three velvet stripes and is laced with velvet. The difference in the robes signifies the different academic titles conferred by the academy to individuals who have passed significant tests and qualifying peer committee reviews.

The hats and tassels have significance. The tassel is worn on the right side before graduation symbolizing your time as a student. You confirm your newfound graduate status when you move it to the other side. This tradition is common at commencements across the country. College baccalaureate ceremonies follow the same rules about turning the tassel. Master and Doctorate degree recipients start with their tassel on the left side and leave it throughout the ceremony.

The colors of the hoods worn by faculty, staff, and administration indicate the major field of study. They are:

Arts and Humanities: White

Business: Beige

Communication: Crimson

Education: Light Blue

Engineering: Orange

Fine Arts: Brown

Library Science: Lemon

Medicine: Green

Music: Pink

Philosophy: Dark Blue

Physical Education: Sage Green

Science: Gold

Theology: Scarlet
